13-Year-Old Boy Fatally Shot in Hunting Accident

Alonzo Hendrix Dies of Wound Received Near Hope Airport

SERIOUS COLLISION

Mrs. G. T. Cox, Texarkana, Critically Hurt in Crash Near Here

Alonzo Hendrix, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hendrix, Missouri Pacific railway car inspector, died in Josephine hospital early Sunday of a gunshot wound received in a hunting accident late Saturday.

The accident occurred near the Hope airport where young Hendrix and two companions were shooting birds.

A full load from a 16-gauge shotgun struck Hendrix in the back just below the right shoulder blade. Several pellets punctured his lungs. He remained conscious until a few moments before his death, which occurred at 2:15 a. m. Sunday.

His two companions were Attley Woods and Pershing Floyd. Woods leveled the shotgun at a bird, but accidentally shot when he discovered it was a mockingbird.

As he brought the gun down from his shoulder, the hammer was released, causing the weapon to fire.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the family residence, South Elm street, with the Rev. L. O. Leet, of Texarkana, officiating. He was assisted by the Rev. Guy D. Holt, pastor of First Christian church of Hope, and the Rev. Fred R. Harrison, pastor of First Methodist church, Hope.

The body was buried in Rose Hill cemetery.

Surviving besides his parents, are two sisters, Juanita and Gertrude and a brother, Roy Hendrix.

The Hendrix family recently moved to Hope from Texarkana.

Texarkana Woman Hurt

Mrs. G. T. Cox and her son, T. A. Cox, 12, of Texarkana, were injured Saturday when the car in which they were riding collided head on with a car containing several negroes, 16 miles northwest of Hope.

Mrs. Cox sustained a broken left arm, a bruised kneecap and other injuries about the breast and head, while the Cox boy received slighter bruises on the head and leg.

The couple were taken to a Texarkana hospital by a Hope Furniture company ambulance.

Mrs. Cox, the most seriously injured of the two, was in a serious condition and shortly after being brought into the hospital, she lapsed into unconsciousness due to the shock and strain of the mishap. Her son, after being given medical attention, was not confined.

In relating the accident, the youth said his mother was driving their car, a coupe, returning from Nashville, Ark., to Texarkana. The car occupied by the negroes, he said, came out from behind a third automobile on the highway and started swaying, the col-

8c of Every $1 in Tax Is Returned

Government Makes This Amount of Error on Income Taxes

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Eight and one-half cents of every dollar of internal revenue collected eventually is forfeited by the government in one form or another.

This was disclosed Sunday through a compilation by the Bureau of Internal Revenue which showed collection of $2,619,919,308 beginning with the fiscal year 1917 through the first quarter of the present fiscal year. But this sum was offset by refunds of $1,507,435,833, and credits and abatement of $3,153,185,786 during the same period.

A refund is what the word implies—a cash repayment for over-assessments or for taxes illegally collected—while "credits" represent an over-charge the government has collected which will be applied to other or future assessments. An abatement is merely a bookkeeping transaction in which the government acknowledges an error in assessment and wipes out its claim against a taxpayer.

Huey Long Includes Negroes in Clubs

Bids for Northern Black Vote in Interview in New York

NEW YORK—United States Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana renounced Southern tradition Saturday and invited negroes in the North to join his Share-the-Wealth clubs. Washington dispatches have reported recently that Long plans to run for president in 1936, and today's statement by the senator was construed by some as his first bid for the negro vote.

While Huey paraded barefoot about his three-room suite in the Hotel New Yorker, he was asked if he knew that Joseph A. Davis, 65, a negro preacher, in the heart of Harlem, was the principal organizer of a Long club.

"Can the negro vote in the North?" he countered. "Well, they can become members of the clubs. In fact, we want them. They don't vote in the South, you know."

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar—(AP)—The Saar plebiscite voting appeared to watchers from the balcony of Warburg hall Monday to be running 10 in favor of Germany to 3 for retention of the status quo (rule by the League of Nations) as neutral tabulators began their count of the ballots.

No votes for France were noticed. The anti-Nazis virtually conceded they had been defeated in the plebiscite.

Copyright Associated Press
SAARBRUECKEN, Saar—(AP)—The "Common Front" in the Saar, anti-Nazi organization opposing reunion with Germany, virtually admitted defeat for its cause Sunday night at the end of voting in the plebiscite to determine the territory's future status.

Max Braun, leader of this opposition, said he would protest to the League Council that the plebiscite was neither "free, uninfluenced nor secret."

The ballots were cast Sunday to determine whether the Saar would be returned to Germany, become a part of France, or remain under jurisdiction of the League of Nations.

The Socialist leader, Braun, called the vote "the worst pseudo-Democratic election ever held outside of Germany's borders."

He made his statement after more than a half million men and women, in orderly silence, entered the plebiscite booths to cast their ballots.

The secretary of the Plebiscite Commission said semi-officially that 98 per cent of those eligible took part in the vote, which he believed to be an all-time record for any country with a secret ballot.

In contrast to the blaring campaign conducted by the Nazis and the opposition, there was no martial music or rallying to the attack.

But Braun declared that responsible quarters had "failed miserably to live up to their guarantee for a free election." He avenged Red Cross nurses who aided invalids in marking their ballots as "tools of Hitler," and charged police with having named members of three Hitlerite organizations to help run the plebiscite. The Red Cross was active everywhere in aiding to get out the huge vote.

The results will be known Tuesday.

Dress Model of Bronx Identifies Condon's Shadow

Miss Alexander Testifies Hauptmann Was Secretly Watching Him

TELEGRAPH OFFICE

Girl Asserts She Saw Other Man Trail "Jafsie" Before Payment

Copyright Associated Press

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Miss Hildegarde Alexander, Bronx dress model, Monday identified Bruno Richard Hauptmann as a man she saw shadowing Dr. John F. Condon before he paid the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom. Eldridge W. Stein, the second of the state's handwriting experts, declared it was his opinion that Hauptmann wrote every one of the 14 ransom notes received by Lindbergh after the baby was stolen.

Albert S. Osborn, Sr., the other expert, reiterated his opinion that Hauptmann wrote the notes, "because the evidence is irrefutable, unanswerable and overwhelming."

Miss Alexander said she saw Condon one night in March, 1932, in a telephone station, and another man behind him, obviously watching him. She said the man was Hauptmann.

Hauptmann turned red as she spoke his name.

State Would Compromise

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been offered life in exchange for a complete confession, provided he names accomplices in the kidnapping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

This compromise, first suggested to the "German" captives, discharged Brooklyn lawyer, James M. Fawcett, has been renewed by New Jersey since Hauptmann went on trial, according to a high prosecution official.

Restlessly peering his cell in the gray stone jail here, Hauptmann Sunday gave no indication, however, that he has any intention of swerving from his plea of innocence. Despite the cumulative chain of evidence produced by the state, the former German machine gunner apparently still hopes to present an alibi that will create a reasonable doubt in the minds of the four women and eight men on the jury.

Offer Rejected Before

The fact that Hauptmann turned down a similar offer of life imprisonment provided he wasn't the unassisted perpetrator of the crime of the century, was revealed for the first time after it was learned that the New Jersey authorities still are more anxious to solve the Lindbergh case and punish every possible conspirator than they are to send Hauptmann to the electric chair and let others who may be implicated in a death house confession escape.

But Hauptmann can only make a compromise to save his life, a high state official declared, if he actually implicated others so that they also can be convicted. In short, a squeal can save him only if the crime was a gang job as his chief lawyer, Edward J. Deilly, persistently has insisted to the jury since the murder trial started.

If Hauptmann unaided wrote the ransom notes, built the three-section portable ladder, climbed the window, stole the baby and then collected the $50,000 after the infant died of a fractured skull—then a confession will avail him nothing in his fight for life.

Signs of Apprehension

Many observers at the trial, including members of the prosecution, believe that the heretofore phlegmatic carpenter is showing signs of becoming panicky as the evidence against him piles up. Everybody present notices how he started, almost as if in

Prescott Men Injured
SHREVEPORT, La.—(AP)—A heavy fog blanketing Caddo and Bossier parishes early Sunday was blamed for a grade crossing accident which almost cost the lives of three Prescott (Ark.) residents when their automobile crashed into the caboose of a Shreveport-bound Cotton Belt freight train in Bossier City, across the Red river from here.

Iman Honea, 21, cleaning establishment employee, was the most seriously injured. He was treated for fractures of both jaws and a fracture of the left leg.

Dallas Cummings, 21, restaurant employee, suffered minor abrasions and George B. Lamb, 25, lumber camp foreman, lacerations.

a trance as Albert S. Osborn, veteran handwriting expert, points out similarity between Hauptmann's script and the penmanship of the 14 letters sent to Colonel Lindbergh, Dr. Condon and Colonel Henry Breckenridge.

He seemed literally stunned at his failure to dot his I's. His trick of not crossing his T's, his curious way of forming the letter "X," coupled with several peculiarities in spelling, seemed almost to write the word "guilty" in the hushed air of the crowded courtroom last Friday.

When finally he left the courtroom and arrived in his cell, Hauptmann was verging on collapse—a nervous condition from which he still is suffering.

While the state cannot bind the jury to any leniency agreement, Hauptmann's death sentence, in event of conviction could be commuted to life imprisonment by the state Board of Pardons, or by the governor. The attorney general, asked about the situation, would only comment:

"We'll talk about that situation when and if Hauptmann confesses."

Hauptmann's Ladder
NEW YORK—(AP)—A Bronx carpenter has informed authorities, the New York American says in a copy-right article, that at the request of Bruno Richard Hauptmann he built the ladder used in the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby.

The carpenter is Abe Samuelsohn, who said he made for Dr. John F. Condon (Jafis) the box in which the $50,000 ransom money was carried the night of payment to "John."

Samuelsohn told the paper that fear of gang reprisals kept him silent until after Hauptmann's arrest. Then, he said, he recognized the prisoner from pictures as the man who had come to him a few days before the kidnapping and had a ladder built.

Authorities Doubt
The paper says authorities apparently are hesitant about accepting Samuelsohn's story, but that he "was quite insistent his recollection was right."

"Samuelsohn said Hauptmann when ordering the ladder was accompanied by another man," the article continues. "The woodcarver's lawyer and nephew, Aaron E. Koota, said three men and a woman are involved in the ladder episode, however."

"Samuelsohn said Department of Justice men had warned him against talking, though he was not under subpoena for the trial."

"Shortly after the kidnapping," said Samuelsohn, "I saw pictures of the Baby Murdered, 2 Negro Girls Held

Hearing Set Friday at Washington Following Pond Discovery

The body of a negro baby, apparently chocked to death a few minutes after its birth, was found in a pond Saturday afternoon a mile southwest of Washington.

Discovery of the body was made by several negro children who were playing around the pond.

Dr. J. H. Weaver, coroner, who conducted an inquest at Washington Sunday, said that the body had been in the pond approximately three weeks.

Two negro girls were questioned, their names being withheld by the coroner. Each accused the other of being the mother of the baby. The girls are half-sisters. One is 18 years old. The other is 20.

Physicians examined both girls and discovered that each had given birth to a baby recently.

While one baby is believed accounted for, the second remains a mystery. Dr. Weaver ordered the pond drained to determine whether it would give up the body of the second baby.

A hearing for the two negro girls will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at Washington.

'Sound Microphone' Picks Up Noises Inaudible to Human Ear

NEW YORK—(AP)—A boll weevil, cause of so much sorrow to farmers of the South, was a star performer Saturday for science.

The noise the weevil makes when "chewing" was magnified by a "sound microscope" 10,000 billion times and the noise was so great that it could be heard all over one of the buildings at New York University.

Dr. E. E. Free who demonstrated the "sound microscope" said he did not dare use the device in connection with any sound normally heard by the human ear.

The purring of a cat, if amplified 10,000 billion times, he declared, could be heard in San Francisco without the aid of telephone or radio.

Ladder. I was certain it was the one I had made, but fear held me quiet.

"Late in February, 1932, two young men came to my shop with a detailed plan on paper for a ladder to be made in three parts. The wood for the ladder was laid out on the floor and the plan showed how they wanted it cut out."

Hauptmann One of Visitors
Two young men came in on February 27 and paid me $14, took the plan and the ladder and went away. Hauptmann was one of the men on one of those visits.

"Meanwhile, Dr. Condon, whom I knew, came in to have a box made. It was the box that he used to place the ransom money in, though I didn't know its purpose then. I have made a duplicate for New Jersey authorities."

"For a whole year I kept the matter secret even from my own family. I was so afraid of a gang that I let the windows of my shop get dirty so that I couldn't be seen from the street."

"I seldom slept well. I trembled at every noise. The strain was so intense and my actions were so nervous that I finally told my wife."

"Finally I went to my lawyer, Koota, and he took me to Capt. John H. Lamb of the New Jersey state police. They took me to Trenton to look at the ladder."

"Some parts had been changed, but I found the carpenter's symbols I had placed on it."

Townsend Pension Plan Is Ridiculed

Would Take Over Half of U. S. Income, Says Secretary Perkins

NEW YORK—(AP)—The "Townsend plan" for paying pensions of $200 a month to persons over 60 is termed "economically and socially unsound" by Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, in an interview with which will appear in the American magazine.

Miss Perkins puts her approval on an old age pension which would be "economically possible."

"The supporters are utterly reckless in their use of figures," she says of the backers of the Townsend plan. "Under it there would be distributed $2,000,000,000 a month in pensions."

"Why, the entire national income in 1933 was less than 40 billions, and this pension scheme alone would be annually 24 billions. It would give to nine per cent of our population more than half the entire income of the country."

"What is an adequate old age pension which is economically possible? It is hard to answer this for the entire country. An adequate pension in one section is not large enough in another."

"Average relief costs vary from $6 to $7 a month per family in some states to $45 per month in urban and industrial communities. The old age standards should be higher than relief standards."

Miss Perkins stresses the saving in money that would result from abolition of poorhouses if a pension were paid to old people. She advocates a job insurance plan "as a major step toward ending economic insecurity," which, she says, affects 30 per cent of the American people.

She favors a plan whereby employers or employees, or both, contribute to an unemployment fund in periods of prosperity.

Man Is Wounded by Gurdon Officer

Jesse Mullins Shot When He Allegedly Draws a Knife

GURDON, Ark.—Jesse Mullins, 25, was shot and critically wounded shortly before 6 p. m. Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Steve Hardin when he attempted to attack the officer with a knife he had already used to stab his wife.

Backing away as Hardin approached him with the drawn weapon, the deputy sheriff tripped and fell onto a bridge. The officer said: "Mullins, who appeared to be drunk, kept coming toward me and I pulled my pistol and fired as I lay on my back."

The bullet from the officer's gun pierced Mullins' stomach and he is not expected to live. He was taken to a hospital at Prescott for treatment.

Clerk in Face Trial for Life

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Jim Clark, notorious southwest desperado, was secretly brought to Oklahoma City from the Kansas state prison at Lansing Monday to stand trial for his life in federal court here.

Clark and three others will be tried on a charge of violating the new federal law providing a death penalty for national bank robberies in which persons are taken as hostages.

The others to face trial with Clark were Frank Delmar, Aubrey Unruh and Entis Smiddy.

Movement of Clark to Oklahoma City was carried out with utmost secrecy to prevent a possible repetition of the Kansas City union station massacre, when underworld pals attempted to free Frank Nash.

Prohi Repeal to Be Issue for Georgia

New Legislature Will Consider Establishing Highway Patrol

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Georgia's legislature convenes Monday to do something about prohibition repeal, decreasing crime and pass laws aimed at permanently ridding the state of Communism.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge is expected to control of the General Assembly and his program will be given right-of-way.

Measures have been drawn providing for repeal of the bone dry laws, asserted by many to be farcical; creation of a highway patrol as a new weapon against increasing crime and to strengthen already existing acts against inciting insurrection and distribution of inflammatory literature.

Governor Talmadge publicly has given approval to the highway patrol and, as an adjunct, establishment of a state Bureau of Identification at the state capitol. He has not commented on either the prohibition or Communism questions, but he has little patience with radicals.

Liquor, regardless of other problems, is expected to bring more controversy. The days have requested a referendum on their own terms—Georgia's unique county unit vote plan.

This plan, in which the county is the unit instead of the state, would assure them victory—so the drys believe—in that the small counties would have the most unit votes, collectively.

The wets desire a state-wide popular vote referendum, for they are certain the populous centers would give repeal a heavy vote. The wets say when the county unit referendum is proposed in the General Assembly an amendment will be attached for local option in counties that want to continue dry, as a counter move.

Beer seems virtually certain of being legalized. It is being sold throughout the state and has been for more than a year without molestation from officers. Many cities have licensed the sale and have obtained considerable revenue from that source.

Government stamped liquor, too, may be bought from bootleggers at about the same price as charged in wet states.

Sale of federal licensed whiskey has brought about a situation whereby the moonshine distillers are selling less and less of their product—in fact, one legislator has said he would not support repeal unless home distillers had a better chance of competing.

Aviation to Make Big Stride in 1935

Eugene Vidal, U. S. Director, Speaks on Radio Broadcast

Responding to Will Rogers' cordial invitation to tell the American public about aviation progress in 1935, Eugene Vidal, director of aeronautics, Department of Commerce, snapped the red tape that usually prevents government officials from appearing on commercial radio programs and predicted that no new year since 1920 has shown more promise for aviation advancement than 1935.

In inviting Eugene Vidal to appear with the Gulf Radio Headliners, Will Rogers, the previous week, said: "I've been in communication with Mr. Gene Vidal. He's got a great deal to do with our commercial aviation in Washington, now, and I've been trying to get him to tell me something about it. I'm going to invite him to come on the air because I think they have some plans for new planes. He's the gentleman who has been trying to get an airplane company to develop a plane that sells for about seven or eight hundred dollars so that everybody can have one."

"The Gulf Company that I work for have been greatly interested in aviation, and not just trying to peddle some gas. I'd like to see a lot of planes in there. And so I hope Mr. Roper, Gene Vidal's boss, will let him come on and tell us something about our new developments in aviation. Tell us just what they're doing, because we're quite a bit behind."

When Eugene Vidal appeared, he stole a bit of thunder from his host by adopting a humorous vein in describing Will Rogers' various plights as America's most famous air passenger. He introduced his brief talk by saying, "It isn't customary for a government official to participate in a commercial radio program. However, my good friend, Will Rogers, requested in his last Sunday's broadcast and in subsequent messages this week that I appear as his guest tonight, and speak briefly about aviation."

"Will Rogers is aviation's star passenger, and one of its greatest boosters and friends, and I think it's part of my job to do anything I can to help Will help aviation. Do you know that you can actually trace the development of air transport by the decrease in the number of air sickness containers—those small cardboard boxes used by Will. Years ago when the first air mail services were started, he rode more as a stowaway than passenger, receiving the same treatment as an air mail letter except for the actual stamping. And by the way, he still boasts of the fact that he paid his way by buying stamps or otherwise because of concern over future investigations."

"And again and again and once for a transcontinental record he was literally stuffed into the small compartment with the mail sacks, enduring more hardships and exposing himself to more dangers than the pilots themselves. Extreme heat and cold, long and bumpy flights, nerve racking noise and vibration, as well as the cramped quarters naturally affects stomachs, and Will's stomach wasn't exactly air-minded."

"Ten years ago he was asking for and using one air sickness receptacle for fifty miles. Five years ago, about one for five hundred miles. Lately, none. Thus, the picture of today's air travel in modern airliner—fast, smooth vibrationless, sound-proof, cooled or heated, comfortable, roomy, and untouching air sick containers. 'I've been associated with either commercial or military aviation since 1920, and as I view it no New Year since that date has shown more promise for aviation advancement than 1935. I can list briefly a few certain developments."

"President Roosevelt, because of his keen interest in aviation appointed a federal aviation commission which will make its report and recommendations in January, looking to a program that will assure definite federal aviation policy and form a basis for greater stability and progress in the industry. The efforts of my chief, Secretary Thomas Roper, to promote greater safety and efficiency in commercial and private flying during 1934 will be even more apparent in 1935. As to commercial aircraft and its use, it has now reached the state in its development in speed, size, load carriage and flight range that commercial air transportation and communication services can and will be extended during the year to practically every corner of the world. Included in this expansion will be the inauguration of oceanic services by large flying boats and airships to and from this country."

"The domestic air lines will continue to improve their admirable operations. A number of the lines with faster equipment, express schedules, more frequent and convenient services, will near the goal of economic independence. One of the Bureau of Air Commerce contributions will be the installation of blind landing radio equipment on several of the longer routes. This proven system will reduce by over eighty per cent the present air line cancellations due to weather. This and the use of our new radio methods of navigation will practically solve the last major problem for air transport operations, and safety of air transport operations."

"Within a few months new advance types of pleasure craft for private owners now being constructed for our bureau will be completed and flown. If satisfactory, a great step forward will have been taken towards producing an airplane which will be easy to control and fly, safer in that it will not fall off or spin, one which can be flown with little practice and from small fields, and which when produced in volume will approximate the price of automobiles has Elker type craft so simple to fly that it was recently flown by an individual who had never had any flight instruction. Also, a few weeks ago, a good friend of mine in the latest type wingless autogiro from a standing start rose thirty feet from the ground, flew about, descended vertically and landed without forward motion."

Following Eugene Vidal, Will Rogers commented: "I was glad that we had Mr. Eugene Vidal on our program."

Unionization to Be Suggested for All

Blanket Plan for All Industry Is Proposed to President

Copyright Associated Press. WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Legislation frankly designed to promote unionization of almost all industry will be proposed to President Roosevelt soon by one group of his principal labor relations advisers.

This same administration group will suggest that the labor relations board be stripped of their enforcement powers that "majority rule" be written into the law and that labor's right to strike be subject to supervision.

These proposals will be handed to Mr. Roosevelt when he starts conferences on NRA revision. They are modeled closely after provisions of the railway labor act. There were no indications as to the president's attitude.

proud to say he's not a brain trust. Mr. Vidal is in a legitimate end of the business. So I'm awfully glad he's in there and, as he told you, they are really making progress in developing a cheap plane—a plane that will sell for somewhere between seven and eight hundred dollars. The Department of Commerce won't back it until it's absolutely proven safe."

Hartzell Held in Jail. CHICAGO.—(AP)—Oscar M. Hartzell, exploiter of the mythical "Sir Francis Drake Millions," waited in a cell Monday to be taken to Leavenworth penitentiary.

A 10 years term was imposed upon Hartzell when he was convicted in Iowa courts of using the mails to defraud investors with myths of acquiring part of the legendary Drake estate from the Bank of England.

When his $25,000 appeal bond lapsed at midnight Saturday, police arrested Hartzell and placed him under constant surveillance lest he take his own life, a move authorities thought he hinted in a statement that he

Again! MAGIC CHEF is selected for the Cooking School

As usual, MAGIC CHEF GAS RANGES are selected for the Cooking School. Miss Jessie Hogue, demonstrator for the School this year, desired a stove for her baking and cooking that can be depended upon to give out even, positive heat.

Point by point, we know of no other range that offers so much for so little. MAGIC CHEF's new type burners spread flame more evenly—won't clog—easily cleaned. Sanitary High Burner Tray prevents boil-overs, spattering fats from dripping on burner pipes and fittings. Famous Red-Wheel Oven Regulator frees you from "pecking" and guessing.

Look for the RED WHEEL When You Buy a MAGIC CHEF

Magic Chef Automatic Top Lighter ignites top burners without matches. Improved Broiler has grid that reduces smoke to minimum—collects fat for basting. Oven and broiler enamel-lined inside and fully insulated.
